Destination Jungle

While every child naturally looks forward to summer and a break from school, it is becoming more and more important that they don't take a break from reading. Recent studies have shown that a child's testable reading level can drop as much as three grades during a book-free summer break. Sign up for our Summer Reading Program and encourage your child to include some reading in their summer. We have a program designed for fun reading - check out the details on the back and on our website at www.jakeeplibary.com.
